

Asus2                    A                    D                    A/C#

- main.                    I am the seed that longs to bloom,                    the riv-er

C#7                    F#m                    F#m/E                    D                    A                    F#m yearn - ing for the sea.                    The heart-felt hope of eve-ry womb.                    I am the

Bm                    E7                    A                    A/D                    A/C#

faith you place in me.                    I am the si - lence and the sound.                    The gen-tle

C#7                    F#m                    D                    A                    E

rain that breaks the stone.                    I am the dream of love un - bound.                    I am the way that calls you home.                    I am the one who sits with

Chorus

D                    A                    D

A/C#                    Bm7                    D/E                    A                    D

sor-row.                    I am the one who feels your pain.                    I am the hope of your to-

A/C#                    F#7                    Bm7                    E7                    C#7                    F#m                    1. Bm                    D/E

- mor-row.                    When all is lost,                    I will re - main.                    I am the one who will re-

Asus2                    2. Bm                    D/E                    Asus2

- main.                    I am the one.                    I still re - main.